“ My thoughts and prayers go out to Richard's family and friends who I know are missing him greatly. I'm so thankful that we were brought together several years ago and he was able to educate me about my ancestors home. I returned on some additional occasions to bring others to meet him and tour the home and visit Clarkesville. He was a beacon of light and his spirit will continue to shine bright.

“ What will we do without Richard's talent and artistic lifestyle? He was so full of knowledge about any antique, and I loved to hear him tell about the highlights of his house and contents and where he found them for a great price.
I toured his house several times and even has lunch cooked for me and another friend a few times by Richard when we visited.
I will truly miss the man and his dog. Buddy was a sweet beagle.
Clarksville Missouri will miss Richard Cottrell also, he was always ready to help anyone, he so enjoyed his life

“ I want to add my words of sympathy to the family and friends of "Butch" as he made a good impression on many people and restored an interesting home in Clarksville and had a magnificent collection of antiques and other important items. I remember meeting him on the times I entered the Tievoli Hills Resort, as he was the greeter at the entrance. D. Randall Cone, Louisiana, MO

“ My memories of Butch began with his being our caretaker at Garth Woodside Mansion in Hannibal. Our group bought the Mansion and restored it and got it on thr national historic register. Butch brought his talent for decor antiques and Victorian architecture at a much needed time . After selling the place my husband Jim Boling and our daughters and I moved to Columbia, Mo. I lost my husband to cancer in 1996. I recently reconnected with Richard and I enjoyed all his writings and comments about his beautiful old home. So sad to hear of his passing, he will be missed by many. Such a kind, sweet soul!!!

“ I knew him as Mr. Cottrell, my art teacher in 7th and 8th grade. I loved to draw animals and people, but he taught us to draw buildings and vanishing points. I remember his lessons on Victorian architecture - houses with widow's walks and witches' towers. I think that really sparked my love for antebellum and Victorian gingerbread houses. May you rest in peace, gentle soul

“ I didn't really know Richard very well, but had contact with him through our mutual love of antiques. He was kind, considerate and fun. He was helpful. We would talk about “stuff” we had acquired and happily commiserate about the antiques trade. He always had a story and I will miss him..

Richard was my art teacher in 5th grade. He always had a kind word or deed in hand. His contributions to the community were many.

Julia Garoutte - July 13, 2019 at 08:48 AM

While our elementary art teacher in Meriwether and Middle Schools in Louisiana, Richard (Mr. Cottrell in those days) would take us on field trips in the blocks around the schools to view the historic homes and point out the different architectural styles and periods. While not having any artistic talent myself, I still remember his knowledge and passion for that, and appreciate he wanted to share and teach it.

I met Butch in college. He was so much fun to be with, and shared his passion for art and antiques. I still have the antique wash stand he sold me for a pittance, because he said I should start owning antiques. So many memories.....

Butch made all the flower bouquets and decorations for my wedding in 1982. When he saw my hat and veil he said: "Oh, we must fix this." Then proceeded to take scissors to the veil and in minutes it looked better than I ever imagined. Butch was kind, fun, talented, creative and had a heart of gold. Aunt Barbara Boling and I just talked about contacting him to meet up for lunch. So sad to hear this news. He was a good man.

Lifelong friends with Richard since we were six! No matter where he was or I was we always stayed in touch and especially since he moved across the street from my parents house. There will never be anyone else like Richard! His heart was so big it just couldn't be contained in the body. I know he is with the Lord, free from pain, and all these earthly cares! See you on the other side Butchie!
